

Monte Good – “Real Honky Tonk Music”

A traditional country singer who draws on the rich history of the Texas dance halls of yesterday, and combines world class musicianship along with true country music and western swing to bring a great dance hall experience to crowds everywhere!

Monte cut his teeth in his native Oklahoma before moving to Nashville where he spent 26 years working professionally in the music industry. Playing steel guitar and working for artists such as John Michael Montgomery, Sara Evans, Neal McCoy, and others provided him with the experience few others could ever imagine. Playing from the stage of the Grand Ol' Opry to packed arenas and stadiums while touring with such legendary acts like George Strait, Reba McEntire and so many more showed him what performing was all about...but also left him wanting more out of his music.

After retiring from the road life of Nashville artists, Monte returned to his roots, and he formed his own band “The Honky Tonk Heroes”, where he continued to play the club and corporate event circuit.

Seeing the music scene in Nashville move away from the style he loved, Monte relocated to Texas. Today finds him based out of New Braunfels, along with his “Honky Tonk Heroes Band” and he continues to perform and promote the traditional country music he loves so well throughout Texas and beyond. He brings his style of traditional country music to new fans wherever he can. Check him out...you'll be glad you did!!!!
